

Ingrid Shanklin is a woman evolving and changing. She is emerging in purpose, plan and potential, eagerly looking forward to many new seasons of abundant grace, favor and prosperity. Years of refining have increased her influence, enlarged her territory, and revealed the power and authority of God in her ministry.

For the past 15 years, international missions work in Australia, the South Pacific and East/ West Africa have been her calling and privilege. Ministering to both men and women, she meets them wherever they are with practical wisdom and instruction. Her humor and down to earth approach always create an atmosphere for personal discipleship and mentoring.

Her ability to influence extensively is drawn from the many experiences she's had as wife, mother, student, soldier and disciple. Every experience combined makes Ingrid relatable to many people in many ways. The ability to meet audiences at every age and stage keeps her ministry relevant and timely. Transparency and authentic availability make room for a message of love, help, and healing everywhere she goes.

Ingrid Shanklin is a mentor, Biblical lay counselor, preacher, teacher, and facilitator. A decorated Sergeant, she served in the United States Air Force in The U.S. and Europe, honorably discharged in 1991. Most recently she graduated from college with a certificate in Veteran's counseling. As an advocate for mental health and wellbeing; she is a certified Therapon Belief Therapist, mental health coach, mentor and first aider. She has been married to her husband Apostle Abraham Shanklin Jr. for 36 years. Among her many achievements, her greatest accomplishment is raising her three adult children, Jared, Aldon and Charis.
